Medical Science Liaisons

For any Pharmaceutical, Biotechnology or Medical Device company, Medical Affairs activities are a critical component to the organization's overall success. In the pre-launch, launch or post-launch phases, the Medical Affairs team's activities are varied and multi-dimensional and they can include:

- Key Thought Leader Identification and Development
- Education of Internal and External Stakeholders on a Disease State or Therapeutic Class
- Market and Clinical Practice Pattern Assessment
- Advisory Board Meetings – Attendance and Moderation
- Development and Execution of Strategic Publication Planning Activities
- Communication of Responses to Unsolicited Requests for Medical Information and Development of FAQ Documents

CTI has an expert staff of MDs, PhDs, PharmDs and RNs to provide Medical Affairs Support across a variety of therapeutic areas and disease states. Our Medical Affairs staff members average more than 20 years of clinical and industry experience. Many have held leadership positions in the most well-respected healthcare companies and Universities. Most have also spent years in clinical practice in critical care areas such as solid organ transplantation, infectious disease and end-stage organ failure.

CTI has provided Medical Affairs Support services to many of our clients over the last 12 years – from start-up companies to the largest pharmaceutical and device companies in the world. We can assist with designing and implementing a full-service Medical Affairs Plan or we
